Frank E. Kean Suicided by Taking Morphine.

DIED IN THE BECKEL HOUSE

Frank E. Kean, formerly a well known sigar maker here, committed suicide yesterday at the Beckei house on lonia atreet by taking morphine. He was found dead in his bed by Hart Sackett, the hotel cierk, at 5:30 yesterday after-

Kean had been drinking heavily for several months and his business had Kean had been drinking heavily for several months and his business had run down so that it was not paying expenses. He had a stock of second hand furniture and stoves at No. 50 South Division street and lived alone in the building. He had not paid his reat and Friday he was ejected by a writ of restitution, the goods being removed to Shattuck's store for storage. When Constable Jackman served the writ he found Kean lying in a stupid condition on a cot in the store and with difficulty aroused him sufficiently to make him understand the nature of his visit. Friday evening Kean went to the Beckel house and engaged a room. He retired but about 9 o clock arose and told the clerk he was going out. He went to Grand-Girard's drug store and asked for 25 cents worth of morphine, telling the druggist that he was accustomed to taking it and knew how to use it cautiously. Upon this representation he procured the drug and went to his room in the Beckel house. Nothing more was heard from him until morning when he called for a pitcher of ice water. The water was taken to the room where he lay in bed, but he said nothing to the porter further than to thank him for it. No more attention was paid to him until the clerk went to call him at 5:30, thinking there must be something wrong. Apparently he had been dead some time when found and the pitcher of water had not been disturbed. Coroner Locher was notified and upon making an examination of the room found the little envelope in which the morphine had been purchased. It was torn in pieces and lay on the floor, and a bottle containing laudanum was also found. It was evident to the coroner that Kean had committed suicide that no inquest will be held.

Kean was a man about 50 years old and was keeper of the city supply store under Poor Director Kusse. At one time he was an active worker in labor organizations and was well known in labor unions. He had no family living here, but it is said he had relatives at Grand Ledge, and the body will be held at the undertaking rooms until they c run down so that it was not paying ex-

The true secret is not so much in the perfectness of the teeth as in the anow like whiteness and the brilliant polish.

All teeth are capable of this with proper care. Washes and pastes should be avoided as they are injurious as are also many of the powders. A property prepared powder, however, is the only right and perfect thing to cleams and preserve the teeth. This we have secreted in producing after much labor had expense.
